Nature and Prosperity.

Some time in the history of the United States there may have been as favorable an outlook for crops as at present, but that is doubtful. One thing is certain, crops were never so large, and it has been years since the general prospect was so good. The cereal production of the country, we are told by the United States Department of Agriculture, will be unprecedentedly large. The department's reporting board forecasts bumper crops of corn, Irish potatoes, spring wheat, oats, barley, rye and buckwheat. Hay also promises a record production, the flax crop will be bigger than ever, and rice is holding its own, with a condition on September 1 better than the ten-year average. Tobacco probably will not reach the proportions of 1910, but the outlook is for a considerable increase over 1911. The condition of apples on September 1 was 67.9 per cent, as compared with a ten-year average. In Kentucky the condition is reported at 87 per cent, as compared with a ten-year average of 85 per cent.

The country's high-water mark in corn production was attained in 1906, but it is estimated that the present crop will be 65,000,000 bushels in excess of the record year, reaching the staggering total of 2,995,000,000 bushels. The potato crop was short last year, but it will be bigger this year by more than a hundred million bushels and will beat the record crop of 1909 by 9,000,000 bushels. The estimated total is 398,000,000. Spring wheat will go over 300,000,000 which will overtop the bumper wheat year by about 8,000,000 bushels. The Department of Agriculture forecasts the oats crop at 2,290,000,000 bushels, which beats the record crop of 1910 by some 104,000,000 bushels.

So it continues through the list to such an extent that it's gravely to be doubted if "Uncle Jimmie" Wilson, with all his vocabulary of optimism, can find words to fit the occasion when he begins summing up results for his annual report. It is a cheerful augury of prosperity for the whole country, for big crops are a strong influence for general activity and progress, and the best possible antidote for hard times. Wherefore, there is good reason for satisfaction all around.

Scarcity of Cattle.

Every Mt. Sterling and Winchester court brings hundreds of cattle to their markets from the mountains but the kind that have passed through here going to Mt. Sterling this time seem to be odds and ends as they are all sizes, shapes and colors with but very few good cattle in the bunches. Traders seem to be picking up every cow and heifer possible as well as steers and the outlook for future calves is being limited every day in this section and further up in the mountains. Scarcity of cattle is one thing that is making them high and will keep them high for some months yet to come.

Profitable Crops.

Cow peas are fine this year in Powell county where many crops have been grown for feed. Both the seed and vines are heavy yielders, and they grow well on thin soil like we have so much of. Cow peas and Japan clover together are a boon to this country and where the two are persistently grown and fed to live stock it proves a source of great profit. Especially is this true when the small cost of production and the light outlay of capital required is taken into consideration.

To Carry Out The Law.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has issued instructions for carrying into effect the new newspaper and periodical law, first returns under which must be made by October 1st.

The law requires that publishers shall file on the first day of April and October of each year, both with the Postmaster General and with the local postmaster, under penalty of denial of the use of the mails, a sworn statement of the names and addresses of the owner, publisher, editor, managing editor and business manager of their newspapers and periodicals. Religious, fraternal, temperance and scientific publications are excepted. For a corporation, the names of the holders of more than 1 per cent. of the stocks, bonds, or other securities must be given, and in the case of daily newspapers, a statement of the average paid circulation for the preceding six months is required.

All editorial or other reading matter appearing in a newspaper or magazine for the publication of which pay is accepted or promised, must be marked "advertisement" under penalty of a fine of not less than $50 or more than $500.

"Although this law was not favored by the Post-office Department," said Postmaster General Hitchcock, "it will be administered faithfully and impartially. In framing the act Congress doubtless had in mind the leading daily newspapers, but it will affect also nearly 18,000 weeklies. Many of these publications are having a hard struggle for existence and will find the making of returns a considerable burden."

The Association.

Thursday was the closing day of the Boone's Creek Baptist Association, which has been in session at the church in beautiful Powell's valley. The opening sermon was by Rev. Richard French and this as the one delivered by Rev. J. M. Ballentine, was very much appreciated. Maj. J. N. Conkwright was Moderator. On Wednesday it was estimated that over 3,000 people were in attendance. The people of that community were extremely hospitable, furnishing bountiful dinners and the comforts of their homes.—Winchester Democrat.

An Iowa girl secured a husband by a message written on an egg. Even matrimony is becoming somewhat of a shell game.

One great trouble with the morals of this country is that there are too many jails and not enough happy homes.

Good luck sometimes goes after a man with a search warrant, but the hustler is usually the man it is looking for.

A man gets to the front sometimes by being shoved by those in the rear.

Of Interest Clay Cityites

Fordsville, Ky.,
Sept. 12th, 1912.

To the citizens of Clay City:

Understanding that you have with you as Principal of your school one of our former citizens and teachers, Prof. J. D. Falls, we desire to congratulate you upon securing his services. He is a native of our town, without a blemish upon his character or reputation. A christian gentleman and a scholar, he is one whom we are proud to claim. As a student of our county high school, of which he is a graduate, he won the Annual Oratorical Contest medal at Hardinsburg, Ky., over that school and Elizabethtown. Also the medal in the annual Declamatory contest in our own school. He is a self-made man of ability, determination, and integrity. We predict that he will give you a school of which you are proud and trust that he will meet, at all times, with your heartiest co-operation and friendship, for he is well worthy of your best faith and respect.

Prices for New Corn.

The indications are that corn will be cheaper this fall than it has been for years. One twenty-five acre field in Mercer county was offered at $2.25 per barrel recently. It is the general opinion that the prevailing price will be about $2 per barrel.—Harrodsburg Leader.

A "sucker" sometimes finds it hard to keep his head above water.

Mt. Sterling Court.

Monday was September court day and stock market and there was a good crowd in the city, the weather being much cooler and the day pleasant. There were about 8,000 head of cattle on the market. There were at least 1,500 head of feeding cattle sold on the roads in this city on Saturday and Sunday, buyers securing the pick in that manner. The cattle brought from 6 to 6½ cents per pound. Trade was brisk at the pens and quality was fairly good. Buyers were here from Ohio, Illinois and other states, and all over this State. Scales were kept busy from morning until night, and the day was an excellent one from a business standpoint, as trade in mercantile lines was good everywhere. The best 1,000 pound cattle brought 6½ cents; cows at from 3½ to 4½, with few extra ones selling at 5 cents.—Mt. Sterling Gazette.

Further evidence of how the multi-millionaire woolen trust magnates "protect" their employes in return for sufficient protection to allow them to overcharge 90,000,000 American consumers on every article of cloth they buy, is revealed in the arrest at Lawrence, Mass., of Will M. Wood, head of the Woolen Trust.

Mr. Wood is charged with placing dynamite in the homes of his $5, $6 and $7 a week foreign millworkers in an attempt to discredit their cause while they were on a strike last winter as a protest against a reduction of wages.

Mr. Wood's arrest is worthy of the attention of every man, woman and child in the country who wears woollens. Because of the fact that Mr. Wood and his fellow woolen trust magnates contribute heavily to Republican campaign funds, Congress has been in the habit of placing the tariff on woollens high enough to keep out all competition, so that the woolen trust could be free to charge any price they desired, up to the limit of the ability of the people to pay. The result is that Americans are paying from thirty to one hundred per cent more for woolen clothing and blankets than the resident of Great Britain pays.

The story of the career of Mr. Wood provides a curious paradox. He is the oppressor of 150,000 miserable New England textile workers, a few years ago he was one of them. In his youth he felt the sting of hunger himself, but now he is pitiless in his thoughts of his employees. He has grown enormously rich, but declares that from $4 to $9 a week is enough for those who labor in his mills.

It is said of many captains of industry that they are ignorant of the conditions of the workmen who earn their fortunes for them that if they knew the distress of their employees they would seek to remedy it. Not so with Wood. He knows. Their distress he sees. Their cries he hears.

Wood's father was a Portuguese Jew emigrant. He labored in a cotton mill and died of tuberculosis—a disease common to cotton and wool spinners. The father's name is believed to have been Alphonso LeHair or LaVair.

When the woolen mill employees, which are composed of 42 different nationalities, most of whom can not speak in English, went on a strike, the fathers and mothers decided to send their babes and little children away to friends in other cities in order that they might not suffer from hunger during the strike. Mr. Wood's agents beat the women, and tore the little ones from their mothers' arms when the children were about to be placed on trains. Thus did Mr. Wood "protect" his employees.

Are the American people willing to continue to contribute to Mr. Wood by paying more for shoddy than good woolen clothing sells for in England? Or do they want the tariff on woollens reduced? There is only one day every two years when the consumers have an opportunity to express themselves on this subject. That day comes on November 5th.

Snow is reported to have fallen in Knox county last week during the cool spell of weather. That is just a warning of what will happen right in November, even in the Eleventh. Caleb, Billy and Teddy will all be buried completely in the snow of clean Democratic votes.

Some of the Bull Moose papers have found out they can no longer remain out of the log cabin camp and have returned to the Republican fold. Sensible, but far more sensible would it have been had they fallen in the swelling Democratic camp.

One Republican paper accounts for the high price of cattle in the way that the bright prospects of Republican success is stimulating the prevailing good markets in favor of the farmer. "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise."

One Republican voter of this city when asked about the dilemma of his party with two candidates, remarked: "If in former years, you couldn't beat one Republican candidate, I don't see how you could now beat two."

The free trade bugaboo of the Redubican papers is an effort to stem the tide of the landslide, but it can't do it.

Finds Cure for Epilepsy After Years of Suffering

"My daughter was afflicted with epileptic fits for three years, the attacks coming every few weeks. We employed several doctors but they did her no good. It is over a year since she has had a fit. We cannot speak too highly of Dr. Miles' Nervine."

HAPPY THO' MARRIED?

There are unhappy married lives, but a large percentage of these unhappy homes are due to the illness of the wife, mother or daughter. The feelings of nervousness, the befogged mind, the ill-temper, the pale and wrinkled face, hollow and circled eyes, result most often from those disorders peculiar to women. For the woman to be happy and good-looking she must naturally have good health. Dragging-down feelings, hysteria, hot-flashes or constantly returning pains and aches—are too great a drain upon a woman's vitality and strength. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores weak and sick women to sound health by regulating and correcting the local disorders which are generally responsible for the above distressing symptoms.

Mrs. DICKOVER.

"I suffered greatly for a number of years and for the past three years was so bad that life was a misery to me," writes Mrs. B. F. DICKOVER, of Utica, Ohio, Route 4. "The doctors told me I would have to go to a hospital before I would ever be better. A year ago this winter and spring I was worse than ever before. At each period I suffered like one in torment. I am the mother of six children. I was so bad for five months that I knew something must be done, so I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce, telling him as nearly as I could how I suffered. He outlined a course of treatment which I followed to the letter. I took two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and a fifty-cent bottle of 'Smart-Weed,' and have never suffered much since. I wish I could tell every suffering woman the world over what a boon Dr. Pierce's medicines are. There is no use wasting time and money doctoring with anything else or any one else."

The Medical Adviser by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y., answers hosts of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know. Sent free on receipt of 31 stamps to pay for wrapping and mailing only.

MRS. TOM'S PART IN THE ELECTION

Governor Marshall's Wife Has the Memory For Names.

ROMANCE OF THEIR LIVES.

The Notification of the Indiana Executive For Democratic Vice Presidency Honors a Record Breaker.

By J. C. HAMMOND,
Of Democratic National Publicity Bureau.

Indianapolis. — Just about the time that thousands of friends of Governor Thomas Riley Marshall were anxiously waiting to shake his hand in congratulation over his acceptance as candidate of vice president on the Democratic ticket a smiling woman stepped before him, and if one could have heard what she whispered in his ear it would have been something like "Now, hurry in, Tom, and change your clothes."

And Tom Marshall forgot to shake hands with the enthusiastic friends until he had carried out the orders of Mrs. Tom.

Indiana has honored four of her sons as vice presidential candidates on the Democratic ticket, but the crowds that greeted Governor Marshall in the big coliseum in the state fair grounds here today were the greatest in the history of the party.

The west wanted to show the east what could be done in no-nonsense honors, and, while Mrs. Marshall was happy, of course, over the honors for her husband, she was also worried, for her husband comes mighty close to being father, husband, son and partner all in one. And when a woman has that combination on her hands to care for she has every right to be worried.

Governor Marshall will never get any honors as a hammer thrower. He is not built that way.

While all the country was reading the vigorous words of Governor Marshall which told the voters what he expects Democracy to do in carrying out the pledges for the next four years it's worth while to know what part a woman is taking in the affairs of the campaign—how Tom Marshall happens to be in the position in which he stands today.

The good people of Columbia City, Ind., never thought Thomas Riley Marshall was a "marrying man." For forty years he had lived with his parents, nursing both his father and mother, who were invalids, which was the reason Governor Marshall was not a marrying man. He felt his first duty was to his parents.

Meeting Mrs. Marshall.

After the death of his parents Governor Marshall dived deeper into his law practice, and one day an urgent case took him to Angola, Ind. His duties called him to the county clerk's office, and there he met Miss Lois Kinsey, daughter of the county clerk, who was assisting her father in the office.

From that day Governor Marshall had more business around the county clerk's office in Angola than any lawyer in half a dozen nearby counties.

Governor Marshall was forty-two years of age when he was married. Mrs. Marshall being nearly twenty years his junior.

The Marshalls had been married only a few weeks when the future vice president was called to an adjoining county on a case that would consume some five or six weeks of his time.

"Now, I did not want to be starting off like that," Governor Marshall explained to a friend one day, so I just told Mrs. Marshall that I thought she should go along. And she did."

Since then Governor Marshall has never made a trip without Mrs. Marshall going along. They have traveled all over the country together; they go to banquets and political meetings together until the friends of the Indiana executive refer to him and his wife as the "pards."

"Tom Marshall is not overstrong," explained one of his friends. "While not a delicate man, his constitution is not of the most vigorous type."

"When he gets into a political battle he forgets his weakness. He gives all that is in him, and that will tell on any man. Mrs. Marshall soon discovered that the governor would become heated in making a speech and the next day his voice would be husky."

She decided that he had better give up some of the handshaking and take care of his health first. So when you find him making a speech he does not stay around to hear the applause of the audience. Rather, he hurries to his room and changes his clothing.

"Some people have said that Tom Marshall is not a handshaking politician. He is not. His wife thinks it is more important to guard his health than to carry out the old time policy, and she is correct, as she is in most all other things."

"Home Air" Prevails.

The Marshall home is typical of the mistress. It is a home of books, and still one does not feel "bookish." One of the Marshall friends said he always felt like eating when he entered the Marshall home in Columbia City or the executive mansion at Indianapolis.

Mrs. Marshall believes in a home first, and the "home air" prevails.

"If Governor Marshall ever occupied the White House people would not know that historic institution," declares an admirer. "Mrs. Marshall would have it a real home. People would feel comfortable even in the midst of the gold and glitter."

But it is not only as a wife and the mistress of a home that Mrs. Marshall shows her ability. She is a politician and a clever one. She also has a remarkable memory.

Governor Marshall has earned the reputation of being in a class of story tellers all by himself. He can remember stories, but he forgets names. A name is something to be cast aside with Governor Marshall, and this is one of the regrets of his life, if he has any regrets. The governor is not a worrying man. He is somewhat a fatalist, but if he could he would like to remember names; but, not having that ability, he does not worry, for Mrs. Marshall is the new rememberer of the family.

She has a peculiar ability along this line. Not only does she remember the last name, but any combination of names comes as second nature to her, and she carries this ability on down to the children and cousins of any one seeking the governor.

While the governor is shaking hands and trying to remember whether his caller is Jones or Smith, Mrs. Marshall is busy supplying the information and asking about all the relatives.

Ideal Partners.

Governor Marshall has no brothers or sisters, and his parents being dead leaves him somewhat barren of relatives.

Governor Marshall's friends are enthusiastic over his home life. When he has started on talking of his wife a new light in the Hoosier executive comes to the surface.

They come near being ideal married partners.

"I was talking to Tom one day," explained one of his most intimate friends. "We were leaning back, and Tom had been telling some of his good stories to illustrate various topics of our conversation. We were waiting for Mrs. Marshall to come back from a shopping tour, and I happened to remark that I liked Mrs. Marshall better every time I met her.

"Well, now that's the way she strikes me, Jim," he said. "We have been married some sixteen years, and as time goes that is a long or short period, just as you think. To me it is but a fleeting day. Then I think back over my married life and I am grown to know Mrs. Marshall is every day. A man must not only love but he must also respect his partner in this life, respect her in all things. She must have wonderful qualities, make the love and respect grow deep and better each day. That's her history."

"The fact that Mrs. Marshall has been in sympathy in my work, I play, my life, is good. But I have been in sympathy with hers. Ours is not one sided life. We have been partners, and that's the way it should be in this world."

Mrs. Marshall has watched over his administration of the affairs of Indiana with a jealous care. There has been nothing of the spectacular in his administration. It has been a sane government. The laws that he has fought for and won show the spirit of the man. They are uplifting. They deal with the improvement of man, woman and child.

While Governor Marshall is described as a "tender hearted" executive nevertheless he is a fighter. He belongs to the old fighting stock of Virginia.

Governor Marshall is not a dodger. He has his opinions, and he lets them be known. While he is an organization man, he knows that organizations are not perfect—that they can make mistakes. If they make mistakes he thinks it is his duty to say so and get the saying over at the first possible moment.

Mrs. Marshall is not satisfied with her domestic duties alone. She wants to do her share in problems of the political and business world. Mrs. Marshall is said to have discussed in detail with her husband his action on the Baltimore convention, and when it was seen that Marshall was the man who was going to go on the ticket with Wilson he wanted to know what his wife thought about it.

"It won't be any harder than being Governor of Indiana, and if the party thinks you are the man it only agrees with my opinion," she said, and that settled the matter with Governor Marshall.

Mrs. Marshall had the honor of being the first woman in Indiana to hold an office. She was appointed county clerk of Steuben county by her father and held that office for a number of years.

When Governor Marshall and his wife were about to be married she decided that her last official act of the office would be to make out the marriage license. Governor Marshall accompanied his wife to the county clerk's office and watched her with care as she noted the records in the big book and filled out the license and watched her as she carefully signed her father's name, with her own as deputy.

Mrs. Marshall, having blotted the ink, said, "Now we can go."

"Not yet," laughed Governor Marshall.

"Why, we are all fixed," explained Mrs. Marshall, pointing to the license. "Yes, but I have to pay for it," replied the governor. "It's all right for you to make it out, but it's up to me to pay the fee." And he did.

Mrs. Marshall is a keen student, and, having established the practice of going with her husband on all his trips, be they short or long, they make it a point to carry along some book.

Mrs. Marshall is as much of a humanitarian as the governor. A glance at some of the bills that have been passed by the 1911 Indiana legislature gives an insight into the governor:

To curtail child labor.

To regulate sale of cold storage products.

To require hygienic schoolhouses and medical examination of children.

To prevent blindness at birth.

To regulate sale of cocaine and other drugs.

To provide free treatment for hydrophobia.

To establish public playgrounds.

To improve pure food laws.

To protect against loan sharks.

To provide police court matrons.

To prevent traffic in white slaves.

To permit night schools.

To require medical supplies as part of a train equipment.

Governor Marshall has also played an active part in providing for protection of labor, as is exemplified by the following acts:

To create a bureau of inspection for workshops, factories, mines and boilers.

To establish free employment agencies.

To require full train crews.

To require safety devices on switch engines.

To require efficient headlights on engines.

To require standard cabooses.

To provide weekly wage, etc.

And Governor Marshall has consulted with his "partner" on all these bills. He is quoted as saying a man can't go far wrong in taking the advice of a wife—if she is his partner as well as his wife.

Don't Suffer!

"I had been troubled, a little, for nearly 7 years," writes Mrs. L. Fincher, in a letter from Peavy, Ala., "but I was not taken down, until March, when I went to bed and had to have a doctor. He did all he could for me, but I got no better. I hurt all over, and I could not rest. At last, I tried Cardui, and soon I began to improve. Now I am in very good health, and able to do all my housework."
